

Assignment

Thesis Project

Create a compelling thesis film, something that we have never seen before, utilizing:

- 1) Innovative characterization,
- 2) Novel use of metaphor, color, space, texture, motion systems, and other visual elements,
- 3) Astute personal/cultural insight that deeply resonates with viewers (players).

The Thesis Project consists of a body of creative work that each student undertakes to earn the MFA degree. The project should express each student's individual aesthetic and personal style. In order to make the Thesis Project unique, students should go beyond their existing body of creative work and knowledge and the project should be a personal exploration of your creative interests, concepts, context, and aesthetics.

Each student should apply the techniques, concepts and theory that you have learned during your first year with your digital art interests. The final form of the project can be an animation or motion graphics video, gallery installation, website, series of digital prints or illustrations, digital sculptures, performance or any other appropriate creative expression using digital methods.

Do not focus on making your Thesis Project a commercial art piece or portfolio piece that will get you a job after graduation. Creativity is what really sells, anyway. A well thought out project, full of creative ideas and techniques, is far more interesting and valuable than any showcase of your software skills could ever be.